

Fritz K. Oser is professor of education and educational psychology at the Department of Education, University of Fribourg, Switzerland. He received his M.A. (1973) and Ph.D. (1975) from the University of Zurich. He was a postdoctoral fellow at the University of California at Los Angeles and at Harvard University, working with Richard Shavelson and Lawrence Kohlberg. In 1987, he received a doctor honoris causa of the University of Mainz, Germany. His research focuses on the one hand on standards of the teacher training process, on choreographies of teaching, and on working for the creation of Just Community Schools – involving teachers, administrators, and students – that foster justice, mutual respect and caring classrooms. On the other hand, his research focuses on developmental issues like moral development, religious development, the development of religious concepts, the ontogenetic course of the ethos of teachers, the development of the conceptions of future and of the so-called negative knowledge, which is generated through learning from mistakes. Publications are, e.g.: Effective and Responsible Teaching. The New Synthesis (Ed. with A. Dick & J.L. Patry), San Francisco: Jossey Bass, 1992.
