I really appreciate the quality of the courses provided by the University of Fribourg. One and a half years studying here helped me a lot in creating a strong knowledge foundation about international business. And very importantly, the university is a part of a strong international network, which allowed me to follow the dual degree program (in partnership with EM Strasbourg Business School in France). The program as a whole opens up many opportunities for my future.

Besides the diverse culture, the polite Swiss people, and the developed infrastructure, I'm amazed by the picturesque nature of Switzerland. Moreover, the location of Fribourg and Switzerland in Europe permits me to travel to other European countries with ease, which helps enrich my experience and multicultural competences.

No words can describe my gratefulness for the education I received at the University of Fribourg. Those courses have prepared me well for the professional settings and career. Every time I am in a meeting or give my client an advice on process transformation, I can't help but think about the path that the University of Fribourg has taken me to. What I liked most was the communicativeness that professors in Fribourg had given me. The size of classrooms is perfect for open discussions and intellectual exchanges between the students and the professor. Without fail, all my professors had been nothing less than supportive and informative in answering my questions. Fribourg is a small yet student-centric city with enough tranquility and affordability (compared to other places in Suisse). I also love the central location of Fribourg. Switzerland has some of the most open-minded people I have met.
