According to the directive of the Faculty of Science and Medicine concerning the protection of pregnant women and women during breast-feeding

Dear collaborator,

You have recently started an activity at the University of Fribourg in a sector where you may be exposed to certain health risks.

Within the framework of health protection, you are required to complete the present document along with your superior. Please sign and return the document by e-mail to the Human Resources Service within 15 days following your entry into service at the University of Fribourg.

Before signing, be sure that you have received all the information concerning the risks involved in your activities as well as the measures of protection at your disposal. In particular, you must be informed about the organisation of maternity protection in your work unit and about the risks involved in the case of pregnancy and have received the following documents and information:

- The directive of the Faculty of Science and Medicine concerning the protection of pregnant women and women during breast-feeding
- Protection of maternity and measures of protection (synoptic table of the SECO)
- Contact for the person of trust of the unit
- Contact for the person responsible for health and work security for UNIFR

In the event of any questions concerning aspects health and work security, you can contact the health and safety delegate of your unit.

By their signature, the collaborator and her direct superior confirm that they have discussed the general risks involved during maternity and the organisation of protection of maternity. The collaborator understands that specific measures of protection in the event of maternity can only be made when maternity or the desire for maternity has been declared. The superior commits herself/himself to take all the measures necessary in the event of such a declaration.
